Ole Olson Company One of the All-Right Kind.

The company which presented "Ole Olson" at the opera Houss last evening is not composed of sixty or seventy people, but what it lacks in numbers it makes up in quality, and the entertainment offered was all that it was guaranteed to be. Harry S Brummell as "Ole Olson" is as good as anyone could ask for, and he made a strong hit with both matines and evening audiences. He has the Swedish dialect to perfection. and also has a good voice. Last evening he sang for the first time "I've Got Another One, Just Like the Other One," a song that is bound to make good.—The supporting cast is made up of people of whom only good words can be said. Olean Times, Oct. 6th. At Emporium Opera House, Monday evening, Oct. 14.

Erie Flyer Wrecked.

On Sunday morning the P. & E. Flyer, west bound, was wrecked between Kane and Johnsonburg, caused by a broken rail. The engine, owing to its great speed, passed over the broken rail safely, but the baggage car and passenger coaches broke from the engine and piled up against the bank. A few of the passengers were slightly injured by the flying glass. It took most all day to clean up the wreck.

Engineer Jas. Collige, who was so severely injured in the wreck at Sterling Run, had charge of this train but fortunately escaped. He visited in Emporium on Sunday.

Afflicted Ridgway.

Our former citizen, A. H. Shaffer, of Ridgway, was a PRESS visitor on Monday, the first time he has been able to leave his home since Ridgway was afflicted with the terrible scourge of fever, hundreds of homes being in the grip of the terrible monster. Three of Mr. Shaffer's children were taken down, one yet being confined to his bed. During the epidemic as many as three hundred nurses were in constant service. The worst has now passed, it is thought.

Block the Way of Tariff Tinkers.

The Scranton "Republican" editorially referring to the necessity of electing a Republican State Treasurer this year, on the eve of a Presidential electhen, sounds this warning, viz:

"Pennsylvania must block the way of the tariff tinkers, who would, in the face of a Presidential campaign, possibly wreck the Republican Party by reckless revenue revision. * * * Nothing should be done at this time in a matter of such peril to the party in power, particularly as there is no great demand for tariff changes on the part of the people, the clamoring being largely done by the politicians.

The industries of Pennsylvania have too much at stake to look with complacency upon any movement having a change of the tariff as its object. The opening of the door to the slightest degree would inaugurate a period of doubt and uncertainty which would be reflected in the utter demoralization of Pennsylvania industries. * *

"If the Republicans succeed in the next Presidential election, and there is every indication that they will, then they may go about tariff revision without causing public hysteria, because it is realized that with the "Grand Old Party" in control only such schedules will be changed as are demanded by altered conditions. But if the door is thrown wide open on the brink of a Presidential campaign, who knows what it will lead to or what the ultimate results will be."

A Generous Gift.

Our townsman, Mr. Geo. Metzger, Sr., recently purchased and presented to Randolph-Macon Wonan's College, Lynchburg, Va., a memorial window to the memory of his daughter, Anna B. Metzger.

The following letter will be self-explanatory:

RANDOLPH-MACON WOMAN'S COLLEGE,
College Park, Lynchburg, Va.

MR. GEORGE METZGER, SR.,
Emporium, Pa.

My Dear Mr. Metzger:

The window came on Saturday and was placed in position Monday. We think the workmanship and appearance entirely satisfactory This morning we had a very touching exhibition of the affection and esteem in which your daughter was held at the memoriol service and unveiling of the window.

I hope it may be in your power to visit us some time soon, not only to see this memorial of our dear friend, but also to let us show our appreciation of your own generosity in this gift. It stands where all students assemble every morning for worship, and generations of young woman who pass through our halls will receive an uplift from this beautiful testimonial to high ability, broad sympathy, and inspiring enthusiasm, which made your daughter a felt force in all the work of our College.

Verv truly yours,
WM. W. SMITH.

A TOUCHING SERVICE TO THE MEMORY OF THE LATE MISS ANNA B. METZGER.

The memorial service held in the chapel of the Randolph-Woman's College yesterday morning in honor of the late Miss Anna B. Metzger was of a most touching character. The exercises included the singing of Miss Metzger's favorite hymn, "Jesus Saviour Pilot Me," and a short eulogy delivered by Chancellor W. W. Smith. Dr. Smith spoke of Miss Metzger's entrance upon her work at the College, of the brilliant record that she made, and of the deep impression that she left on the college life. He especially dwelt upon her distinguished success as a musician and of the high regard in which she was held by all who knew her.

At the close of Dr. Smith's remarks, the beautiful stained glass window in the rear of the chapel, placed there in momory of Miss Metzger, was unveiled.

A number of Miss Metgzer's friends from the city attended the exercises.—Lynchburg, Va., News.

As a dialect character "Ole Olson" is a decided success. The speech of the Swede is one that lends itself readily to comedy use and the way that the English language gets tangled up is decidedly amusing. The company that will be at the Emporium Opera House, Oct. 14th, is large and well balanced and is made up of a group of well known favorites. During the performance a number of very pleasing and entertaining specialties will be introduced.

Friendly Aid.

Under the auspices of Mrs. E. M. Newton, a girls Friendly Society was organized at the New Warner on Saturday evening, the 5th inst. The following officers were unanimausely elected: President, Miss Nina Bryan; Treasurer, Miss Encie Howard, Secretary, Miss Alice Montgomery.

"Ole Olson" Coming.

"Ole Olson" a play that has long been a favorite with theater goes will be at the Emporium Opera House, Oct. 14th. "Ole Olson" is one of the best Swedish dialect comedies and possesses all the charms of originality. In place of the yodling German, there is in this truthful depiction of Anglo-Swedish character, an honest, big-hearted immigrant, who is shown in a natural manner.

For the Stone Crusher.

Judging from the legal "ad" in another column, published by the State Forestry Commission, it looks as though the B. & S. R. R., are after state land rock to feed their stone crusher. There is no scarcity of rock in that section.

Big Hit.

M. B. Raymond's big attraction, the "Lunatic and the Lady" at the opera house, last night filled that large house. The company pleased the audience and made a big hit. Encore upon encore was accorded them. "Good," "good" was the unanimous opinion.

Crushed to Death.

Last Thursday evening David Sloppy, aged about 52, whose family reside at Coryville, Pa., was working under a car that was "jacked up" when a yard engine bumped into the car. The car crushed the life out of Sloppy. Deceased leaves a large family. His funeral took place Sunday afternoon from the residence of his son, on Plank Road Hollow.

Big Masonic Meet.

Emporium Lodge, No. 382, A. Y. M., held a special meeting last evening at their spacious rooms, the attendance being the largest in the history of the Lodge. District Deputy Mussina, of Lock Haven, honored the "boys" by his attendance.

He was riding a bicycle at the time he was struck and did not see the train until it was upon him. J. F. S.

"Age cannot wither nor custom stale" the attractions possessed by that best of Swedish dialect plays, "Ole Olson." Year in and year out, for more than a decade "Ole" has been presented to the Theatre going public and its popularity has never waned. Other Swedish characters have come upon the scene, but none of them can vie with "Olson" in the regard of the public, and it stands unique in its line like Rip Van Widkle and Uncle Joshua Whitcomb. "Ole" will be presented at the Emporium Opera House, Oct. 14th. The company is the same that has presented the play this season in New York, Brooklyn, Boston, St. Louis and other cities.

Advance Skermish to Next Year's Battle.

"The contest for State Treasurer this fall is but the preliminary skirmish to the great Presdential battle to be fought in 1908. In view of the fact that a decided sentiment is being created in the New England States and in some portions of the West in favor of tariff revision, it must be apparent to any citizen of Pennsylvania possessing average intelligence, that he makes no mistake when he advocates the conducting of the campaign on the 'stand pat' tariff policy."—Snyder County "News."

Sneak Thieves.

Last Friday night some sneak thieves stole from the front veranda of Mr. E. F. Zwald's residence a large and handsome palm and several potted plants. These petty larcenies are becoming so frequent that our citizens would do well to be prepared with shot guns and give such miserable creatures what they deserve.

A scientist says that first love is "a species of cerebral commotion and a stirring of some hitherto dormant associations by appropriative affinitive impression." O, pshaw!

King Edward's indignation at the impropriety of a London performance may cause a number of English playwright to follow up the practice of making first productions in America.

The worst obstacle to successful ballooning seems to be the earth. They are always bumping into that, with usually disastrous results. If the earth could be avoided, somehow, particularly in the downward flights, the science and pastime of aeronautics might be more popular.

It has been discovered that the modern tourist is not the only person who has scribbled his name on the walls of public buildings. Mr. H. H. Hall, an English Entomologist, said in a recent lecture on the excavations at Thebes, that he had noticed on the tomb of Rameses IV. a remark written by an ancient Greek tourist.

As usual, American missionaries are courageous and refuse to leave their converts and their stations, even though peril impends. The diplomatic corps at Tangiers is reported as thrilled with the courage of the Christian Americans, who refuse to come out of the zone of danger from the rampant and murderously inclined Moors.

Connecticut has found that a trap made of a wooden nutmeg frame inclosing sharpened shingle nails, a mowing machine, cutting bar and chisels carefully sharpened and all upturned, is sufficient to stop any automobile that crosses it. But the enterprising inventor is temporarily out of business, having been discouraged by the courts.

Rear Admiral Charles H. Davis, Jr., just retired, a native of Cambridge, was a worthy successor to his father of the same name and equal rank, says Boston Herald. His scientific and diplomatic work, notably his conduct at Jamaica in the Swettenham incident, sustained the reputation of our high naval officers as more than mere fighters.

In 1817 one Richard Thornton, called to the bar of the king's bench charged with the murder of Mark Askford, in open court threw down his glove and defied his accuser. Whereupon there was a pretty to-do. Wager of battle, it was supposed, had died a natural death in the dark ages, but Lord Ellenborough, after much consultation of precedent, held that it was still the law of England, and ordered a field to be prepared. Thornton's accuser thereupon declining combat, the prisoner was discharged. Next year parliament passed an act abolishing this privilege of appeal to the strong right arm.

One victim of light-fingered gentry at a recent fair was a milkman. He was relieved of a valuable diamond on his shirt front. At this point the average consumer will pause for a smile, appreciative but mirthless. It was probably a milkwhite stone, verging to a delicate blue at its outer edges.

Princes may come and princes may go, but the tuft-hunters and the silly people who imagine themselves superior to the institutions of their country will probably continue on exhibition.

A Copenhagen actress, who is regarded as the world's champion trunk packer, has just declined an offer to become principal of a school for the professional trunk packers. And yet everyone will agree that such an institution has long been sorely needed.

It is claimed that European capital is becoming timid about investing in this country's securities. Possibly this is for the best. If American investments are advantageous, remarks Washington Post, they should be kept for American investors.

METHOD IN SCHEME

JACOB SCHIFF, FINANCIER, FAVORS TARIFF REDUCTION.

This Would Stop the Building Up of Great Monopolies and the Accumulation of Vast Fortunes, and Make Mr. Schiff's Money Worth More.

Money talks, but not always reasonably or intelligently. For example, Mr. Jacob H. Schiff, member of one of the world's largest banking houses and director in a dozen or so of lesser banking and loan concerns, has lately broken into print with the following:

"Nothing will so thoroughly prevent the building up of great monopolies and the accumulation of the vast fortunes, the existence of which is at the bottom of the prevailing social unrest, as a sound and sensible revision of the tariff. . . . It is right that American industry and the American workingman be protected against undue foreign competition, but it cannot be right to compel the American consumer to pay a vast profit to the manufacturer where the latter under a much lower tariff would be able to maintain himself. Herein lies the principal remedy which needs to be applied if the causes which have brought about present conditions are to be permanently eradicated."

It will be noticed that Banker Schiff's sole concern is for the consumer. Most consumers are also producers, but we are not aware that Banker Schiff is a producer. Breeder, perhaps, but not producer. He marries coin and currency together and takes the increase. He profits by the merger of corporate properties, but we have not heard that by so much as a dollar's worth he has ever advanced raw or partly finished material in value by a manufacturing process. Mr. Schiff is said to control a larger quantity of spot cash than any other one person in the United States. Naturally he is interested in enlarging to the utmost extent the purchasing power of his cash. Not being the producer of any commodity advanced in value by human labor, he would like to buy more of the products of labor with his dollars. A dear dollar and a cheap man would suit Mr. Schiff better than a cheap dollar and a dear man.

An able financier may not be an able industrialist. The man who knows how to make two coins grow where one coin grew before is not necessarily a high authority on anything but his finance. It is more than possible that he knows very little of the relation of labor cost to production cost in manufacturing and the relation of tariff to both. Quite certain it is that Mr. Schiff does not speak whereof he personally knows when he asserts that American manufacturers, paying double the European rate of wages and ten times the oriental rate, could maintain themselves "under a much lower tariff." Ninety-five per cent. of the business men engaged in manufacturing, to say nothing of the 10,000,000 men who work for wages, do not agree with Banker Schiff in this matter. They do not think that American labor and production would under a much lower tariff remain as prosperous as they now are. To prove this they have an argument that even money lenders should be able to see the force of. They point to the fact that this country is now importing each year more than $800,000,000 worth of competitive products. Generally speaking, this does not indicate that the tariff is much too high.

If Mr. Schiff could spare a moment from his tariff ripping lucubrations he might discover something of direct fiscal significance in the latest trade returns. The official statistics for the seven months ending with July, 1907, show that our imports had increased, over the same period in 1906, $136,158,370, while our exports show an increase of $99,469,605. The net increase of imports for the seven months has been $36,685,756, or at the rate of $63,000,000 a year. But the showing for the month of July, 1907, is still more significant. Imports show an increase over the same month in 1906 of $22,238,517, or at the rate of nearly $267,000,000 a year; while exports for July, 1907, increased $16,861,961, or at the rate of a little over $200,000,000 a year.

This marked rate of increase of imports as compared with exports has occurred under the tariff as it is—or as it is supposed to be. When the tariff should be reduced to suit Mr. Schiff the flood of imports would enormously increase, that being the main object sought by tariff reduction. Then we should be sending gold abroad out of our banks to balance trade. At the rate imports are even now gaining upon exports our trade balance is being greatly reduced. Any further increase of the rate of gain of imports would be likely to bring on a gold exportation panic. Tariff reduction would hasten the advent of that situation.

Foolish to Force It.

That the tariff will some time have to be revised does not admit of doubt or of dispute. Every intelligent man concedes that this time will eventually come, since constantly changing business conditions will naturally bring it about, but, until that time does arrive, the party would be very foolish indeed to undertake to force it. The people of this country are not slow to express their preference upon great questions of this character and when they become dissatisfied with the tariff they may be depended upon to say so in plain words. Until they so declare the president will do well to stand pat, as he has evidently decided to do.—St. Joseph (Mo.) Gazette

TARIFF FOR REVENUE ONLY.

Phrase Cannot Be Accepted at Its Face Value.

Senator Hemenway of Indiana is quoted as follows on the subject of next year's campaign:

"For the first time in sixteen years the tariff will be the main issue, in my opinion. The corporation problems have been mostly attended to now, and, unless some big new issue should crop up as the result of the next session of congress, the tariff will be the principal topic on the stump. The Republicans will contend that the tariff should be revised after the inauguration of the next President in the interests of protection and by the friends of protection.

The Democrats will contend that the tariff should be revised with the idea of tariff for revenue only in view. On that issue I have not the slightest doubt that the Republicans will be returned to power. This is a protectionist country."

"A tariff for revenue only," has in times past led to a good deal of discussion. Until 1894 the phrase was accepted at its face value. It meant the levying of no more duties on importations than necessary to carry on the government economically administered. Such was the explanation offered by men of the Carlisle-Morrison, Watterson-Mills school of tariff reformers, who for years had made the land resound with the issue.

But when the Democratic party, with Mr. Cleveland in the white house, was called upon to put the issue into legislative shape it "fell down" with the task distressingly, and to its own loss and humiliation. The Gorman-Wilson measure proved to be anything but "a tariff for revenue only," being stuffed full of duties designed expressly for protection. Even the bill that Mr. Cleveland wanted would have carried a large amount of calculated protection.

As the government must have money for its support—no party would dare put the United States on short commons—much importance attaches to the proposition that the government be "economically administered." Our expenses at present are not what they were in 1884, when Mr. Cleveland was first elected, nor what they were in 1892, when he was the second time elected, on a platform carrying a demand for "a tariff for revenue only." Now, what is economy? If we are spending too much money, where shall retrenchment begin? How, and to what extent, should the pruning knife be applied?

Mr. Hemenway is justified in his statement that this is "a protectionist country." The truth of that will readily appear if the "tariff for revenue only" men take the ground next year that the English of their issue means the challenge of protection to a duel to the death.

A Midsummer Night's Dream.

It is difficult to sufficiently admire the cheerful optimism of the new tariff editor of American Industries. Mr. Miles has got it all settled. The tariff is to be taken out of politics, he says, before the Sixtieth congress assembles on the first Monday in December, a little more than 90 days hence. This is quick work indeed. Puck in "A Midsummer Night's Dream" declared

"I'll put a girdle round about the earth
In forty minutes."

The Miles midsummer night's night's dream is even swifter and more difficult of realization. Puck's promise has been verified by electricity and a telegraph wire. The Racine (Wis.) Puck will need a larger dose of electricity to help him take the tariff out of politics in 90 days. He will have to kill off some 16,000,000 voters arrayed on one side or the other of the question, "Protection or Free Trade?" and bring into being before the first Monday in December 16,000,000 new voters, including about 500 senators and representatives in congress who have absolutely no views on this question. It will be a great man who can take the tariff out of politics in 90 years. Let alone 90 days.

Tariff Ripping Reasons.

The fact of an $87,000,000 surplus suggests to the New York Tribune the conclusion that "the Dingley schedules have done their work in certain lines and need revision." By a similar process of reasoning the same conclusion might be reached regarding other facts and conditions. The country is more prosperous than ever before; the Dingley schedules have done their work and need revision. Labor is employed to an extent and at a rate of wages hitherto unknown; the Dingley schedules have done their work and need revision. Our foreign trade has been doubled in ten years; the Dingley schedules have done their work and need revision. We have a yearly trade balance of about half a billion dollars, which enables us to keep out of debt to foreign countries; the Dingley schedules have done their work and need revision. In its search for tariff ripping reasons the Tribune ought not to overlook these things.

More, Too.

Considering the fact that in the first month of our new system of making competition easier by the reduction of tariff duties through undervaluation, imports of competitive articles have increased nearly $12,000,000, is there any real necessity for either tariff reduction or reciprocity by act of congress? Is it not a fact that when we were scared into allowing foreigners to appraise their own merchandise we revised and reciprocated about all we can stand? And more, too, it will probably turn out.

DEEP WATERWAYS CONVENTION

AT MEMPHIS IS ADDRESSED BY PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT.

IS GIVEN A GRAND WELCOME

Veterans Who Fought for the Confederacy Acted as a Guard of Honor During His Progress Through The Streets.

Memphis, Tenn. — With bands playing, children singing and enthusiastic men shouting the slogan of deep waterways, Memphis on Friday threw wide her gates to President Roosevelt, a score of governors and many other distinguished personages.

The president arrived on the steamer Mississippi shortly after 1 o'clock. The bluffs overlooking the river were packed with people who gave the chief executive a warm welcome. As the steamer landed the whistles of all the craft in the harbor were sounded. Immediately following the steamer Mississippi was the steamer Alton, carrying visiting governors and other notables.

When all had landed the president was conducted to a carriage by Gov. Patterson, of Tennessee, and Mayor Malone, of Memphis, and the most imposing parade ever given here was begun. The president was continuously cheered throughout the march. The city was a waving mass of color, not only along the line of parade, but on many other streets as well. When the president's carriage turned into Main street he was saluted by a regiment of Confederate veterans, who thereafter acted as a bodyguard. The president warmly greeted the warriors of a half century ago.

Arriving at the Auditorium rink, where the deep waterways convention is in session, President Roosevelt alighted, chatted with several friends and ascended the platform. The huge structure filled up rapidly and, when Gov. Patterson rose to present the president, an immense assemblage greeted him.

President Roosevelt departed from his printed speech in several instances. Speaking of the Confederate guard of honor, he said it was a touching sight to see these old Confederate soldiers carrying the flag of this great Union. If anyone wanted to know how they would fight for that flag, let him ask the boys in blue how the boys in gray fought against it. He said that he was as much the president of the south as of the north, and was devoted to the south's interests.

Speaking of a deep water channel from the gulf to the lakes, the president said he favored rapid improvement of the Mississippi river.

"Like Davy Crockett, the great Tennesseean," he said, "I favor his motto, 'Be sure you are right, then go ahead,' and this deep water problem is almost up to the 'go ahead' stage, but we want to be sure about it."

The Panama canal, he said, was getting on well, "and the reason it is getting on so well is because we did not allow ourselves to go off half-cocked."

When the canal has been completed, he said, this nation would not ask other governments "kindly not to bother the canal;" we would protect it.

BUSINESS BULLETIN.

A Brisk Fall Trade Is Reported and Manufacturers are Busy.

New York City.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says:

Interest centers in fall retail trade and results are all that could be desired. There is no sectional difference on this point, all leading cities reporting a liberal distribution of seasonable wearing apparel. Supplementary orders are coming to wholesale houses, and satisfactory results with autumn goods encourage manufacturers to extend preparations for the next season. Mercantile collections have also improved, October payments being fairly well met thus far, although rates for commercial paper are abnormally high.

Among manufacturers the most notable increase in orders is reported by New England shoe shops, while there is no idleness at cotton mills, and the reduction of steel output is not significant. In some lines there a sentiment of conservatism that eliminates much of the customary speculative business and this is regarded with satisfaction by those who appreciate the importance of moderation until the financial pressure is reduced.

No change has occurred in the iron and steel industry. Few sales of pig are recorded and some sections of the market are slightly weaker, but as a rule steadiness prevails.

Killed His Brother.

Oxford, Pa.—Edward Kauffmann, aged 9 years, was shot and killed at Nottingham, near here Friday, by his brother Harry. The older boy recently won a revolver on a cane board at the county fair. Armed with the weapon he went to meet his brother on his way home from school and, pretending to be a highwayman, he held the little fellow up at the point of the pistol. The weapon was discharged and the bullet penetrated young Kauffmann's brain. The brother at an inquest held in the case was exonerated from blame.

Will Try to Exclude Japs.

Bellingham, Wash. — As a result of the investigation made by G. B. Babcock, a special agent of the United States treasury department, a force of federal officers will be installed at the international boundary line to keep back the scores of Japanese who are daily crossing the border into the United States.

A Strike of 8,000 Men.

New Orleans, La.—The immense cotton shipping business of this port was tied up last night by the strike of 8,000 members of the Cotton Handlers' union.

OIL TRUST GIVES REBATES

SOME RAILROADS ARE HIGHLY FAVORED BY THE STANDARD.

The Government Inquiry Into Methods of the Big Trust Is Resumed at New York City.

New York City.—That the Galena Oil Co., a subsidiary of the Standard Oil Co., controls 97 per cent. of the lubricating oil business with the railroads of the United States and that the prices for its products are not uniform with all railroads, was written in the record of Thursday's hearing of the federal suit against the so-called oil trust. C. C. Steinbrenner, an accountant for the Galena Co., told how contracts were made with railroads whereby they were guaranteed a maximum cost for the lubrication of the road, based on mileage for engines and cars, and when the maximum cost was found at the end of certain periods to fall short of the invoice price, which all railroads paid when they received the oil, the Galena company made a refund of the difference.

From statements compiled from the Galena Co.'s books, Mr. Kellogg was able to show that in some cases the amount of the refund was nearly 50 per cent. of the invoice price. Mr. Steinbrenner testified that the lubricating ail furnished to the Pennsylvania railroad was sold at a loss. The Galena company fixed the standard invoice price of valve oil for engines last year at 48 cents a gallon and Mr. Kellogg drew from the witness that the Pennsylvania railroad, after the refund was deducted, obtained its oil for 24 cents.

Mr. Steinbrenner testified that the New York Central, Union Pacific, Delaware & Hudson and Southern railroads paid 48 cents a gallon, or the full invoice price, without refund. The Baltimore & Ohio railroad paid 38 cents a gallon, while the Toledo, Peoria & Western obtained its oil for 26 cents. Mr. Steinbrenner said that the fixing of the minimum cost of lubrication to a railroad was a matter of hard bargaining.

A letter written by President Miller, of the Galena company, in 1905, to Vice President Marony, of the Pittsburg, Shawmut & Northern railroad, and placed in evidence, stated that the Galena company was supplying 97½ per cent. of the total mileage of the United States, Canada and Mexico. One of the railroads that the Galena company did not supply with oil, Mr. Steinbrenner said, was the Tidewater railroad, owned by Henry H. Rogers, vice president of the Standard Oil Co. The witness said the Galena company had tried to obtain the contract with the Tidewater railroad, but had failed.

AUSTRIAN RAILROADERS STRIKE.

Employes' Policy of "Passive Resistance" Results in Almost a Complete Tieup.

Vienna, Austria.—The strike of the railroad employes of Austria for increased wages, which began October 1, is spreading and the serious inconvenience to the public is growing every day. All passenger trains were late Thursday and on some lines freight traffic has been completely suspended. The machine shop workers have joined the railroad men. The authorities have offered further concessions, but the men do not appear inclined to accept them.

This strike is being conducted according to the "passive resistance system." This consists of a literal interpretation and application of every rule and regulation governing the movement of freight and passenger trains. These rules are so precise, cumbersome and impracticable that when carried out to the letter, as the men are now doing, the movement of trains is delayed more and more every day until finally blocks occur and traffic comes to a standstill.

The advantage of this system to the men is that their attitude is blameless; they are not striking, they are not refusing to work, but they are carrying out every order given them in strict accordance with the regulations provided by the authorities. The roads affected are the entire government system and the Northwestern line, covering together all of Austria.

Rev. Ferguson Is Arrested.

Lincoln, Neb. — Rev. Wilbur P. Ferguson was arrested Thursday on a charge sworn out by Arthur E. Cross, alleging criminal relations with Mrs. Cross. The complaint follows the recent church trial of Mr. Ferguson at the Methodist Episcopal conference which ended in his withdrawal from the ministry.

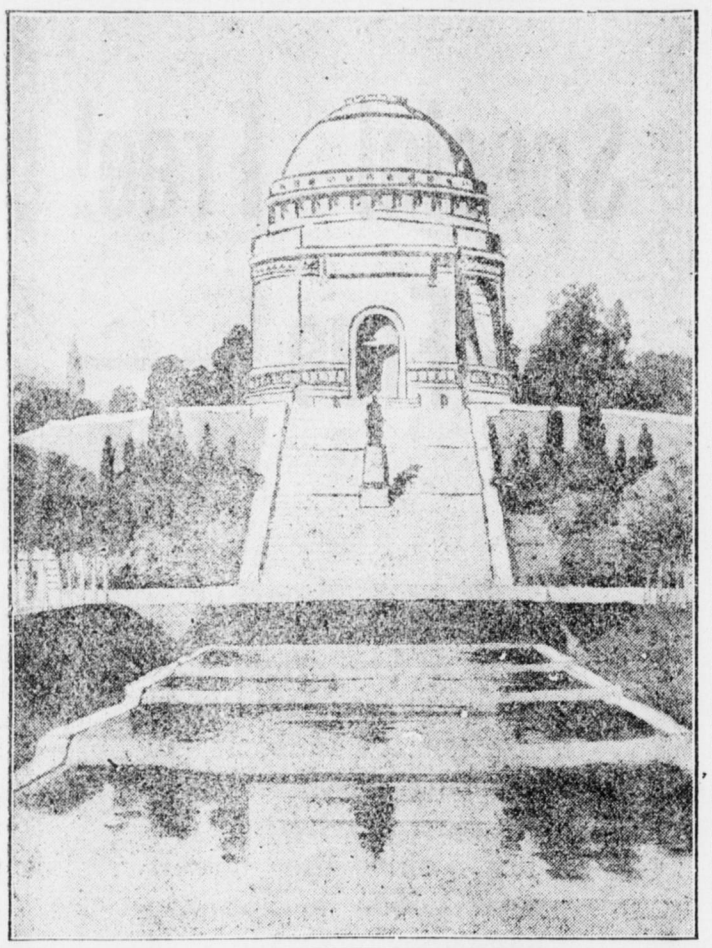
THE M'KINLEY MONUMENT AT CANTON.



A NATION'S TRIBUTE

To an Honored Statesman, Wise Executive, Brave Soldier and Good Citizen.

M'KINLEY MONUMENT AT CANTON DEDICATED

President Roosevelt Delivers an Address Eulogistic of the Man Who Preceded Him in Office.

Canton, O. — On Monday the name of William McKinley, "a good citizen, brave soldier, a wise executive" and a martyr, was engraved upon the pages of history to endure forever. It was the tribute of a grateful nation, in both word and deed. A million Americans contributed the $600,000 necessary to perpetuate the memory of a beloved son in the form of a splendid monument, a tomb worthy of the name, in which lies the dust of Canton's illustrious citizen and one of the foremost presidents of the United States.

Noted men from all parts of the country, and many representatives of foreign countries made the pilgrimage here to dedicate the mausoleum, and made the event conspicuous. Chief among these was President Roosevelt, who delivered the main address of the day, an appreciation of William McKinley.

A little over ten years ago Canton gave to the country a president, William McKinley. McKinley gave to the nation his life. Yesterday the nation gave Canton a monument and McKinley a last resting place. The monument is a magnificent structure, simple and imposing. In the sarcophagi are the bronze caskets containing the bodies of both McKinley and his wife. In niches in the wall of the tomb are two little caskets containing the ashes of their only children, Ida and Mary, both of whom died in infancy.

Fully 50,000 persons gathered here to witness the dedication of the monument. They sang the songs of his country and eulogized his memory.

The dedication ceremonies proper were preceded by a reception in honor of President Roosevelt, McKinley's successor. The president arrived in Canton in a special train over the Pennsylvania railroad at 10:15 a. m. The president was escorted to the Central high school building, where he and his escort passed in review before 1,700 school children grouped and dressed to represent the national flag. As the president approached the children arose and sang "America."

The president then drove to the reviewing stand, where he witnessed a magnificent military and civic parade which took nearly an hour and a half in passing.

The parade was in charge of Senator Charles Dick, chief marshal of the day.

At the close of the parade the president lunched at the Auditorium and at 1 o'clock was taken to the monument on Monument hill.

The presidential party arrived at the speakers' stand at 1:47. The party proceeded at once to the chairs reserved for each guest. The arrival of President Roosevelt upon the stand was greeted with cheers. The audience arose. The president was accompanied by Justice Day and Vice President Fairbanks. At 2:24 Justice Day called the meeting to order and introduced Gov. Harris, president of the day.

Gov. Harris said he would make no remarks and at once proceeded with the program. He introduced Rev. Dr. Bristol, of Washington, whose church President McKinley attended when in Washington. Rev. Bristol offered prayer. Gov. Harris then delivered the opening address.

Justice Day was greeted in silent respect when he arose to tell the history of the building of the magnificent mausoleum which arose majestically in the background. After the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner" by the assemblage, Justice Day spoke.

During his speech Justice Day when mentioning the name of H. Van Buren Magonigle, the architect of the monument, and of Charles Niehaus, the sculptor, asked those addressed to arise, which they did and were greeted with applause.

At the close of Justice Day's speech Gov. Harris asked the audience to rise while Miss Helen McKinley, only sister of the late president drew aside the flag disclosing the bronze figure of McKinley in the attitude of delivering his last speech on the day of his assassination at Buffalo, September 6, 1901. The flag was removed slowly and impressively. This was followed by the reading of the poem entitled "William McKinley," by James Whitcomb Riley.

President Harris then introduced the president of the United States.

President Roosevelt stepped briskly to the front of the platform and was greeted with applause. The president spoke deliberately and very distinct. He spoke as follows:

We have gathered together to-day to pay our meed of respect and affection to the memory of William McKinley, who as president won a place in the hearts of the American people such as but three or four of all the presidents of this country have ever won. He was of singular uprightness and purity of character, alike in public and in private life; a citizen who loved peace, he did his duty faithfully and well for four years of war when the honor of the nation called him to arms. As congressman, as governor of his state, and finally as president, he rose to the foremost place among our statesmen, reaching a position which would satisfy the keenest ambition; but he never lost that simple and thoughtful kindness toward every human being, great or small, lofty or humble, with whom he was brought in contact, which so endeared him to our people. He had to grapple with more serious and eomplex problems than any president since Lincoln, and yet, while meeting every demand of statesmanship, he continued to live a beautiful and touching family life, a life very healthy for this nation to see in its foremost citizen; and now the woman who walked in the shadow ever after his death, the wife to whom his loss was a calamity more crushing than it could be to any other human being, lies beside him here in the same sepulcher.

There is a singular appropriateness in the inscription on his monument. Mr. Cortelyou, whose relations with him were of such close intimacy, gives me the following information about it: On the president's trip to the Pacific slope in the spring of 1901 President Wheeler, of the University of California, conferred the degree of LL. D. upon him in words so well chosen that they struck the fastidious taste of John Hay, then secretary of state, who wrote and asked for a copy of them from President Wheeler. On the receipt of this copy he sent the following letter to President McKinley, a letter which now seems filled with strange and unconscious prescience:

"Dear Mr. President:

"President Wheeler sent me the inclosed at my request. You will have the words in more permanent shape. They seem to me remarkably well chosen, and stately and dignified enough to serve—long hence, please God—as your epitaph. Yours faithfully, JOHN HAY."

"University of California,
"Office of the President.

"By authority vested in me by the regents of the University of California, I confer the degree of Doctor of Laws upon William McKinley, president of the United States, a statesman singularly gifted to unite the discordant forces of the government and mold the diverse purposes of men toward progressive and salutary action, a magistrate whose poise of judgment has been tested and vindicated in a succession of national emergencies; good citizen, brave soldier, wise executive, helper and leader of men, exemplar to his people of the virtues that build and conserve the state, society, and the home.

"Berkeley, May 15, 1901."

It would be hard to imagine an epitaph which a good citizen would be more anxious to deserve or one which would more happily describe the qualities of that great and good citizen whose life we here commemorate. He possessed to a very extraordinary degree the gift of uniting discordant forces and securing from them a harmonious action which told for good government. From purposes not merely diverse, but bitterly conflicting, he was able to secure healthful action for the good of the state. In both poise and judgment he rose level to the several emergencies he had to meet as leader of the nation, and like all men with the root of true greatness in them he grew to steadily larger stature under the stress of heavy responsibilities. He was a good citizen and a brave soldier, a chief executive whose wisdom entitled him to the trust which he received throughout the nation. He was not only a leader of men, but pre-eminently a helper of men; for one of his most marked traits was the intensely human quality of his wide and deep sympathy. Finally, he not merely preached, he was, that most valuable of all citizens in a democracy like ours, a man who in the highest place served as an unconscious example to his people of the virtues that build and conserve alike our public life, and the foundation of all public life, the intimate life of the home.

Many lessons are taught us by his career, but none more valuable than the lesson of broad human sympathy for and among all of our citizens of all classes and creeds. No other president has ever more deserved to have his life work characterized in Lincoln's words as being carried on "with malice toward none, with charity toward all." As a boy he worked hard with his hands; he entered the army as a private soldier; he knew poverty; he earned his own livelihood; and by his own exertions he finally rose to the position of a man of moderate means. Not merely was he in personal touch with farmer and town dweller, with capitalist and wageworker, but he felt an intimate understanding of each, and therefore an intimate sympathy with each; and his consistent effort was to try to judge all by the same standard and to treat all with the same justice. Arrogance toward the weak, and envious hatred of those well off, were equally abhorrent to his just and gentle soul.

STATUE OF PRESIDENT McKINLEY.

A bronze masterpiece that is a feature of the monument erected to the martyr president at Canton.

Surely this attitude of his should be the attitude of all our people to-day. It would be a cruel disaster to this country to permit ourselves to adopt an attitude of hatred and envy toward success worthily won, toward wealth honestly acquired. Let us in this respect profit by the example of the republics of this Western Hemisphere to the south of us. Some of these republics have prospered greatly; but there are certain ones that have lagged far behind, that still continue in a condition of material poverty, of social and political unrest and confusion. Without exception the republics of the former class are those in which honest industry has been assured of reward and protection; those where a cordial welcome has been extended to the kind of enterprise which benefits the whole country, while incidentally, as is right and proper, giving substantial rewards to those who manifest it. On the other hand, the poor and backward republics, the republics in which the lot of the average citizen is least desirable, and the lot of the laboring man worst of all, are precisely those republics in which industry has been killed because wealth exposed its owner to spoilation. To these communities foreign capital now rarely comes, because it has been found that as soon as capital is employed so as to give substantial remuneration to those supplying it, it excites ignorant envy and hostility, which result in such oppressive action, with or without the law, as sooner or later to work a virtual confiscation. Every manifestation of feeling of this kind in our civilization should be crushed at the outset by the weight of a sensible public opinion.

From the standpoint of our material prosperity there is only one other thing as important as the discouragement of a spirit of envy and hostility toward honest business men, toward honest men of means; this is the discouragement of dishonest business men, the war upon the chicanery and wrongdoing which are peculiarly repulsive, pecuniarly noxious, when exhibited by men who have no excuse of want, of poverty, of ignorance, for their crimes. Men of means, and above all men of great wealth, can exist in safety under the peaceful protection of the state, only in orderly societies, where liberty manifests itself through and under the law. It is these men who, more than any others, should, in the interests of the class to which they belong, in the interests of their children and their children's children, seek in every way, but especially in the conduct of their lives, to insist upon and to build up respect for the law. It may not be true from the standpoint of some particular individual of this class, but in the long run it is pre-eminently true from the standpoint of the class as a whole, no less than of the country as a whole, that it is a veritable calamity to achieve a temporary triumph by violation or evasion of the law; and we are the best friends of the man of property, we show ouselves the staunchest upholders of the rights of property, when we set our faces like flint against those offenders who do wrong in order to acquire great wealth or who use this wealth as a help to wrongdoing.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT.

Wrongdoing is confined to no class. Good and evil are to be found among both rich and poor, and in drawing the line among our fellows we must draw it on conduct and not on worldly possessions. In the abstract most of us will admit this. In the concrete we can act upon such doctrine only if we really have knowledge of and sympathy with one another. If both the wage-worker and the capitalist are able to enter each into the other's life, to meet him so as to get into genuine sympathy with him, most of the misunderstanding between them will disappear and its place will be taken by a judgment broader, juster, more kindly, and more generous; for each will find in the other the same essential human attributes that exist in himself. It was President McKinley's peculiar glory that in actual practice he realized this as it is given to but few men to realize it; that his broad and deep sympathies made him feel a genuine sense of oneness with all his fellow-Americans, whatever their station or work in life, so that to his soul they were all joined with him in a great brotherly democracy of the spirit. It is not given to many of us in our lives actually to realize this attitude to the extent that he did; but we can at least have it before us as the goal of our endeavor, and by so doing we shall pay honor better than in any other way to the memory of the dead president whose services in life we this day commemorate.

The program concluded with the singing of "America" and a benediction by Bishop Horstmann.

After the president passed through the tomb the general public was admitted, and thousands streamed through before the doors were closed.

Four states have contributed a share of the material used in the building of the monument. The granite used in the approaches and the mausoleum proper are from the quarries of Milford, Mass. Tennessee furnished the gray marble for the interior of the tomb, while the sarcophagi which holds the bronze caskets in which lie the bodies of President and Mrs. McKinley are of dark green granite from Windsor, Vt. The base upon which the sarcophagi rests is black granite from Berlin Wis.

From the first step of the approach to the monument to the top of the structure is 163 feet 6 inches, the mausoleum itself being 98 feet 6 inches above the summit of the mound. The top of the dome has an oculus 15 feet in diameter through which comes a softened light which adds greatly to the beauty of the interior.

The mausoleum is 78 feet 9 inches in diameter. Huge Doric columns are placed around the interior in such a manner as to appear half buried in the sides of the building. The floor is of mosaic, marble having been brought from many states for the purpose.

Half way down from the top of the 125 granite steps that lead up to the main entrance on the south side of the mausoleum stands an heroic bronze figure of President McKinley, representing him in the attitude usually assumed when speaking—his left hand holding a roll of manuscript and the left hand in the trousers pocket. Behind the figure is a bronze chair encircled with a wreath, and draped with the flag of United States.

Thomas A Edison, the great American inventor, says, "Fully eighty per cent. of the illness of mankind comes from eating improper food or too much food, people are inclined to over-indulge themselves." This is where indigestion finds its beginning in nearly all cases. The stomach can do just so much work and no more, and when you overload it, or when you eat the wrong kind of food, the digestive organs cannot possibly do the work demanded of them. It is at such times that the stomach needs help; it demands help, and warns you by headaches, belching, sour stomach, nausea and indigestion. You should attend to this at once by taking something that will actually do the work for the stomach. Kodol will do this. It is a combination of natural digestants and vegetable acids and contains the same juices found in a healthy stomach. It is pleasant to take. It digests what you eat. Sold by R. C. Dodson.

DANGER SIGNALS UP

Manufacturers Send Warning to Pennsylvania Republicans.

FEAR OF TARIFF TINKERING

Capital and Labor Seriously Concerned Over Agitation of "Iowa Idea" of Revision In the Stronghold of Protection.

[Special Correspondence.]

Philadelphia, Oct. 8.

A committee of manufacturers of this city has started a movement to impress upon the citizens of Pennsylvania their direct and vital interest in the maintenance of the protective tariff policy of the national government.

Following up the formal action taken at a recent meeting of the Manufacturers' club, when vigorous resolutions were adopted in opposition to any "tinkering with the tariff," influential men, prominently identified with the industrial interests of this state, have inaugurated an educational agitation to awaken the voters of Pennsylvania to the danger confronting them from the development of sentiment, in the west and elsewhere, in favor of a revision of the tariff.

The assistance of Chairman Wesley R. Andrews and his colleagues of the Republican State committee, has been sought to further the campaign for a "stand pat" policy on the tariff issue.

Manufacturers Are Alarmed.

The manufacturers admit that they are concerned over the persistence of the tariff revisionists, and they look to Pennsylvania Republicans to come to the front, as they have done in the past, and emphasize their continued fealty to the principles of a protective tariff.

The tariff revisionists have been sending tons of literature into Pennsylvania for the purpose of breaking the lines of the protective tariff Republicans, and they have been banking upon cutting down the vote of the Republican state ticket at the coming election and thus weaken the voice of the state in the councils of the Republican party of the nation.

The enemies of protection are making a great play to have delegates elected to the coming Republican National convention who will favor the insertion of a plank in the platform calling for a revision of the tariff.

The manufacturers who have started in to combat this proposition realize the gravity of the situation and look to Pennsylvania to block the game of the revisionists.

Chairman Andrews' Call to Action.

After a conference with some of the leading manufacturers interested in the movement, which means so much to the industrial and business interests of this state, Colonel Andrews today said:

"Pennsylvania's industries are endangered by the agitation for a revision of the tariff, and none can appreciate what I say better than those who have their capital invested and who depend upon the protective tariff to shield them from ruinous competition from the products of the poorly paid labor of foreign countries.

"There must be no tinkering with the tariff, either before or after the presidential election, and Republicans of Pennsylvania must be alive to the situation. If any move shall be made to change existing tariff schedules, even in the slightest degree, it will inaugurate a period of doubt and uncertainty which would be reflected in the utter demoralization of Pennsylvania's manufacturing interests, and there could be but one result, a condition that would bear heavily upon the farmers and wage workers of our commonwealth, and seriously embarrass the capital employed in vast fields of commercial activity.

"Pennsylvania will not lose an opportunity at the coming election to proclaim to the other states in the Union that she has no sympathy with the 'Iowa idea' for a scaling down of the tariff.

"In no more effective and solemn manner can the Republicans of Pennsylvania meet this issue than by registering at the November election their emphatic decree that by no act of theirs shall the bars be let down which now exclude foreign competition with American labor.

"The contest this fall is but the skirmish of the great presidential battle of next year.

"If Pennsylvania shall roll up a pronounced majority for the cause of Republicanism in November, the state will continue to wield a potent influence in the national councils of the party.

"If, as the result of indifference and of paying heed to the shallow and sensational charges of the opposition, the Democratic candidate for state treasurer should be elected, of which, in my judgment, there is not the remotest chance if Republicans perform their full measure of duty, the shout would go up all over the land that the Republicans of Pennsylvania were indifferent as to the continuance of the tariff, and, thereby greatly weaken the influence of the Republicans of Pennsylvania in the next Republican national convention.

Necessity For Action.

"The consequence of such a state of affairs would be illustrated by a cessation of all industrial enterprises within our borders, with the inevitable result that the workingman and the farmer would in the end bear the brunt of the disaster.

"Face to face with these conditions and with the full knowledge as to the embarrassments that would follow, all Republicans are appealed to as members of the great party of protection and prosperity to recognize the necessity for earnest, active, and patriotic work in order not only to bury the opposition beyond the hope of resurrection, but to strengthen the position of our great state at next year's Republican national convention in the battle that must inevitably be fought there for the preservation of the protective policies which have made Pennsylvania the keystone of the industrial arch of the federal union. None should be deceived by those who affect not to see disaster in Republican indifference, but all should go to work at once with a will to discharge their full measure of duty.

"Every Republican committeeman should work to circumvent the designs of the Democrats to obtain possession of the state treasury, which, by the way, they will attempt to accomplish by the circulation of false statements and by aspersions upon the honesty of the Republicans of Pennsylvania. Their unsavory methods should inspire every Republican heart with the resolve to defeat their machinations by vigorously supporting the Republican candidate for state treasurer, Hon. John O. Sheatz, whose name is a synonym for integrity, and who enjoys to the fullest extent the confidence of the party from one end of the state to the other.

"In consideration of the approach of an important presidential campaign," said Chairman Andrews, "Republicans of Pennsylvania should set the pace by rolling up a large majority at next November's election to accentuate their fealty to the principles of the Republican party and their adherence to the policy of 'leaving well enough alone,' a matter of vital importance to the manufacturers, farmers and wage earners of Pennsylvania, and also to emphasize their approval of the progressive policies of the national administration."

"SCAN MY RECORD"

So Says Nominee Sheatz to Voters of Pennsylvania.

HE IS A CANDID CANDIDATE

Republican Choice For State Treasurer Takes People of the State Into His Confidence and Rests His Case With Them.

[Special Correspondence.]

Harrisburg, Pa., Oct. 8.

John O. Sheatz, Republican nominee for state treasurer, is making a personal canvass of the state, and wherever he goes he is received with enthusiasm and there is reason to believe he will be elected by a splendid majority.

"I am meeting the people face to face," said Mr. Sheatz, as he chatted about his campaign, as he stopped off here between trains, "and I am more than pleased with my receptions.

"I want the people to scan my record in the legislature and vote accordingly.

"While acting as chairman of the appropriations committee at Harrisburg during the last session of the legislature, I was particularly interested in the matter of increasing the public school appropriation for the counties.

"With the help of the rest of the committee and the consent of our good governor, we succeeded in increasing the former amount $4,000,000, thereby making the total $15,000,000 for the next two years.

"Besides providing this great amount for the public school system, there were also large sums appropriated for the state normal schools, for the State College and the Universities of Pennsylvania and Pittsburg—all of which was for the benefit of the young men and women of our state, and I am looking forward to the time when the state government of Pennsylvania shall appropriate all the money necessary to educate her children.

"No state in the Union gives nearly as much to her counties as Pennsylvania for the public schools. We want to give to each child better opportunities to become a well educated citizen, to be better qualified to do his or her part toward keeping our state in the front ranks of the Union, for these advantages should lead to a higher standard of citizenship and better government.

"When the people of Pennsylvania elected that splendid representative American, Edwin S. Stuart, governor of this commonwealth, they laid the foundation of better government and the people need have no anxiety as to the welfare of their state, for their government will be conducted safely and honestly.

"The assertions made by members of the opposing party, that there should be a minority representative in the board of public grounds and buildings in order to insure economy and honesty, does not appeal to the people of broader minds who know the sterling qualities of Edwin S. Stuart, our governor, and Robert S. Young, auditor general, two of the three men comprising that board.

"As a candidate for the office of state treasurer of this state, I am free from any obligations whatever, excepting my duty to the people of this commonwealth, and if my fellow citizens believe in me and feel I will be true to the trust I ask them to repose in me, then I hope they will vote for me."

Sealed Orders.

The custom of having warships sail under sealed orders arose from the desire of maritime powers to prevent the plans from becoming known to the enemy. In the American navy such orders come from the president and are delivered to a commander of a ship or squadron by a confidential messenger who knows nothing of their contents. Sometimes they are in cipher, but they are always sealed with the official seal of the navy department and the package cannot be opened until the time marked on it, which is usually several hours after the hour of leaving port. By this precaution the newspapers are prevented from disclosing prematurely the movements which may be of the greatest importance, and the spies of the enemy are rendered useless so far as their ability to discover the secret of such movements is concerned. Sailing under sealed orders is now the common naval practice in time of war. These instructions are found in the packet of sealed orders, which is opened when well out at sea.

(Copyright, 1905, Bobbs-Merrill Co.)

SYNOPSIS.

The American consul to Barscheit, a principality of Europe, tells how the reigning grand duke had tried to find a husband for his rebellious niece, the Princess Hildegarde, finally decreeing that she wed the Prince of Doppelkinn, an ugly old widower, ruler of the neighboring principality. Though he had been in the country for six months the American consul had never seen the princess. While horseback riding in the country night overtakes him, and he seeks accommodation in a dilapidated old castle. While seeking admission he is startled by a beautiful voice breaking into song. The place is inhabited by two young women and an old servitor. They give him food for himself and horse on condition that he leave within an hour. They are seemingly bent on a secret escapade of some kind with one Steinbock.

The other—well, I couldn't help it. It was Kismet, fate, the turn in the road, what you will. I fell heels over head in love with her at once.

Eyes she had as blue as the Ægean sea on windy days, blue as the cloud-winnowed sky of a winter's twilight, blue as sapphires—Irish eyes! Her hair was as dark and silken as a plume from the wings of night. (Did I not say that I had some poetry in my system?) The shape of her mouth—Never mind; I can recall only the mad desire to kiss it. A graceful figure, a proud head, a slender hand, a foot so small that I wondered if it really poised, balanced or supported her young body. Tender she must be, and loving, enclitical rather than erect like her authoritative companion. She was adorable.

All this inventory of feminine charms was taken by furtive glances, sometimes caught—or were they taking an inventory of myself? Presently my appetite became singularly submissive. Hunger often is satisfied by the feeding of the eyes. I dropped my napkin on the table and pushed back my chair. My hostesses ceased conversing.

"Ladies," said I courteously, "I offer you my sincere apologies for this innocent intrusion." I looked at my watch. "I believe that you gave me an hour's respite. So, then, I have 30 minutes to my account."

The women gazed at each other. One laughed, and the other smiled; it was the English girl who laughed this time. I liked the sound of it better than any I had yet heard.

(Pardon another parenthesis. I hope you haven't begun to think I am the hero of this comedy. Let it be furthest from your thoughts. I am only a passive bystander.)

"I sincerely trust that your hunger is appeased," said the one who had smiled.

"It is, thank you." I absently fumbled in my coat pockets, then guiltily dropped my hands. What a terrible thing habit is!

"You may smoke," said the Bougereau child who was grown into womanhood. Wasn't that fine of her? And wasn't it rather observant, too? I learned later that she had a brother who was fond of tobacco. To her eyes my movement was a familiar one.

"With your kind permission," said I gratefully. I hadn't had a smoke in four hours.

I owned a single good cigar, the last of my importation. I lighted it and blew forth a snowy billow of heavenly aroma. I know something about human nature, even the feminine side of it. A presentable young man with a roll of aromatic tobacco seldom fails to win the confidence of those about him. With that cloud of smoke the raw edge of formality smoothed down.

"Had you any particular destination?" asked Gretchen.

"None at all. The road took my fancy, and I simply followed it."

"Ah! that is one of the pleasures of riding—to go wherever the inclination bids. I ride."

We were getting on famously.

"Do you take long journeys?" I inquired.

"Often. It is the most exhilarating of sports," said the Enchantment. "The scenery changes; there are so many things that charm and engage your interest; the mountains, the waterways, the old ruins. Have you ever whistled to the horses afield and watched them come galloping down to the wall? It is fine. In England—" But her mouth closed suddenly. She was talking to a stranger.

I love enthusiasm in a woman. It colors her cheeks and makes her eyes sparkle. I grew a bit bolder.

"I heard a wonderful voice as I approached the castle," said I.

Gretchen shrugged.

"I haven't heard its equal outside Berlin or Paris," I went on.

"Paris?" said Gretchen, laying a neat little trap for me into which my conceit was soon to tumble me. "Paris is a marvelous city."

"There is no city to equal it. Inasmuch as we three shall never meet again, will you not do me the honor to repeat that jewel song from Faust?" My audacity did not impress her in the least.

"You can scarcely expect me to give a supper to a stranger and then sing for him, besides," said Gretchen, a chill again stealing into her tones. "These Americans!" she observed to her companion in French.

I laid aside my cigar, approached the piano, and sat down. I struck a few chords and found the instrument to be in remarkable good order. I played a Chopin "Polonaise," I tinkled Grieg's "Papillon," then I ceased.

"That is to pay for my supper," I explained.

Next I played Le Courier, and when I had finished that I turned again, rising.

"That is to pay for my horse's supper," I said.

Gretchen's good humor returned.

"Whoever you are, sir," her tone no longer repellent, "you are amusing. Pray, tell us whom we have the honor to entertain?"

"I haven't the vaguest idea who my hostess is,"—evasively.

"It is quite out of the question. You are the intruder."

"Call me Mr. Intruder, then," said I.

It was, you will agree, a novel adventure. I was beginning to enjoy it hugely.

"Who do you suppose this fellow is?" Gretchen asked.

"He says he is an American, and I believe he is. What Americans are in Barscheit?"

"I know of none at all. What shall we do to get rid of him?"

All this was carried on with unstudied rudeness. They were women of high and noble quality; and as I was an interloper, I could take no exception to a conversation in a language I had stated I did not understand. If they were rude, I had acted in a manner unbecoming a gentleman. Still, I was somewhat on the defensive. I took out my watch. My hour was up.

"I regret that I must be off," I said ruefully. "It is much pleasanter here than on the road."

"I can not ask you to remain here. You will find the inn a very comfortable place for the night," was Gretchen's suggestion.

"Before I go, may I ask in what manner I might serve as a witness?" Ere the words had fully crossed my lips I recognized that my smartness had caused me to commit an unpardonable blunder for a man who wished to show up well in an adventure of this sort. (But fate had a hand in it, as presently you shall see.)

Gretchen laughed, but the sound was harsh and metallic. She turned to her companion, who was staring at me with startled eyes.

"What did I tell you? You can not tell a gentleman in the candle-light." To me she said: "I thought as much. You have heard Faust in Paris, but you know nothing of the French language. You claimed to be a gentleman, yet you have permitted us to converse in French."

"Was it polite of you to use it?" I asked. "All this," with a wave of the hand, "appears mysterious. This is not a residence one would expect to find inhabited—and by two charming women!" I bowed. "Your presence here is even less satisfactorily explained than mine. If I denied the knowledge of French it was because I wasn't sure of my surroundings. It was done in self-defense rather than in the desire to play a trick. And in this language you speak of witnesses, of papers, of the coming of a man you do not trust. It looks very much like a conspiracy." I gathered up my gloves and riding-crop. I believed that I had extricated myself rather well.

"This is my castle," said Gretchen, gently shaking off the warning hand of her companion. "If I desire to occupy it for a night, who shall gainsay me? If I leave the latches down, that is due to the fact that I have no one to fear. Now, sir, you have eaten the bread of my table, and I demand to know who you are. If you do not tell me at once, I shall be forced to confine you here till I am ready to leave."

"Confine me!"—nonplussed. This was more than I had reckoned on.

"Yes." She reached out to strike the gong. (I can not be blamed for surrendering so tamely. I didn't know that the old servitor was the only man around.)

"I am the American consul at Barscheit."

The two women drew together instinctively, as if one desired to protect the other from some unknown calamity. What the deuce was it all about? All at once Gretchen thrust aside her friend and approached. The table was between us, and she rested her hands upon it. Our glances met and clashed.

"Did the duke send you here?" she demanded repellently.

"The duke?" I was getting deeper than ever. "The duke?"

"Yes. I am the Princess Hildegarde."

CHAPTER III.

The Princess Hildegarde of Barscheit! My gloves and riding-crop slipped from my nerveless fingers to the floor. A numbing, wilting sensation wrinkled my spine. The Princess Hildegarde of Bascheit! She stood opposite me, the woman—ought I not to say girl?—for whom I had been seeking, after a fashion, all these months! The beautiful madcap who took the duchy by the ears, every now and then, and tweaked them! The princess herself, here in this lonely old castle into which I had so carelessly stumbled! Romance, enchantment! Oddly enough, the picture of her riding a bicycle flashed through my brain, and this was followed by another, equally engaging, of the hussar who rode cross-country, to the horror of the conservative element at court.

"'Wait!' She Commanded."

"The Princess Hildegarde!" I murmured stupidly.

"Yes. I have asked you a question, sir. Or shall I put the question in French?"—ironically. "Was it the duke who sent you here?"

There was a look in her superb eyes which told me that it would have been to her infinite pleasure to run a sword through my black and villainous heart. Presently I recovered.

"Your highness, what the deuce has the duke to do with my affairs, or I with his? As an American, you would scarcely expect me to meddle with your private affairs. You are the last person in the world I thought to meet this night. I represent the United States in this country, and though I am inordinately young, I have acquired the habit of attending to my own affairs."

From the angry face in front of me I turned to the dismayed face beyond. There must have been a question in my glance. The young woman drew herself up proudly.

"I am the Honorable Betty Moore." (The princess' schoolmate in England!)

Her highness stood biting the knuckle of a forefinger, undecided as to what path of action to enter, to reach a satisfactory end. My very rudeness convinced her more than anything else that I spoke the truth.

"How, then, did you select this particular road?"—still entertaining some doubt.

"It is a highway, free to all. But I have already explained that," I answered quietly. I moved deliberately toward the door, but with a cat-like movement she sprang in front of me. "Well, your highness?"

"Wait!" she commanded, extending an authoritative arm (lovely, too). "Since you are here, and since you know who I am, you must remain."

"Must?" I repeated, taken aback.

HOME-MADE REMEDY

INEXPENSIVE AND EASILY PREPARED BY ANYONE.

Is Said to Promptly Relieve Backache and Overcome Kidney Trouble and Bladder Weakness Though Harmless and Pleasant to Take.

What will appear very interesting to many people here is the article taken from a New York daily paper, giving a simple prescription, as formulated by a noted authority, who claims that he has found a positive remedy to cure almost any case of backache or kidney or bladder derangement, in the following simple prescription, if taken before the stage of Bright's disease:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Shake well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and again at bedtime.

A well-known authority, when asked regarding this prescription, stated that the ingredients are all harmless, and can be obtained at a small cost from any good prescription pharmacy, or the mixture would be put up if asked to do so. He further stated that while this prescription is often prescribed in rheumatic afflictions with splendid results, he could see no reason why it would not be a splendid remedy for kidney and urinary troubles and backache, as it has a peculiar action upon the kidney structure, cleansing these most important organs and helping them to sift and filter from the blood the foul acids and waste matter which cause sickness and suffering. Those who suffer can make no mistake in giving it a trial.

NOTHING HID FROM KAISER.

How German Emperor Keeps in Touch with World's Affairs.

The German emperor's interest in everything that goes on in the world is well known, but few are aware of the trouble he takes to keep in touch with current affairs. According to a Munich newspaper, the kaiser reads at least three papers every day, changing the list several times a week in order to become fully acquainted with the ideas of all political parties in the state. But this by no means exhausts his appetite for information. Every day the ministry of foreign affairs, as well as that of the interior, has to provide newspaper cuttings, properly named and dated, and pasted on slips ready for the emperor's perusal. These he carefully reads, making marginal notes as he goes along, and they are then scrupulously classified and put aside ready for immediate reference. Often, too, the emperor asks for cuttings relating to the particular technical subjects in which for the time he is specially interested.

FURIOUS HUMOR ON CHILD.

Itching, Bleeding Sores Covered Body —Nothing Helped Her—Cuticura Cures Her in Five Days.

"After my granddaughter of about seven years had been cured of the measles, she was attacked about a fornight later by a furious itching and painful eruption all over her body, especially the upper part of it, forming watery and bleeding sores, especially under the arms, of considerable size. She suffered a great deal and for three weeks we nursed her every night, using all the remedies we could think of. Nothing would help. We tried the Cuticura Remedies and after twenty-four hours we noted considerable improvement, and after using only one complete set of the Cuticura Remedies, in five consecutive days the little one, much to our joy, had been entirely cured, and has been well for a long time. NO NEED FOR WORDS.

Brief Pantomime Told Everything to the Onlooker.

Harrison Grey Fiske discussed, at a dinner in New York, the art of acting.

"I believe," said Mr. Fiske, "in subtlety and restraint. A nod, a shake of the head, a silent pause—these things are often more effective than the most violent yelling and ranting.

"Life is like that, subtle and silent. What, for instance, could be more expressive than this scene, a scene without a spoken word, that I once witnessed in the country?

"An undertaker stood on a corner near a noble mansion. He elevated his brows hopefully and inquiringly as a physician came from the house. The physician, compressing his lips, shook his head decidedly and hurried to his carriage. Then the undertaker with a sigh passed on.

Annoying.

"I suppose your family had a good time in Europe."

"Well," answered Mr. Cumrox, "I don't think mother and the girls enjoyed themselves all the time. You see, they had so much trouble figuring foreign money back into dollars that every now and then they were embarrassed by finding they had accidentally ordered something that wasn't expensive."

Mildred—Of course, I care more for a man's true love than for the amount of money he spends." Clothilde—"Oh, of course!" Mildred—"But still, it's awfully hard to hold a cheap man dear."

TIRED BACKS.

The kidneys have a great work to do in keeping the blood pure. When they get out of order it causes backache, headaches, dizziness, languor and distressing urinary troubles. Keep the kidneys well and all these sufferings will be saved you. Mrs. S. A. Moore, proprietor of a restaurant at Waterville, Mo., says: "Before using Doan's Kidney Pills I suffered everything from kidney troubles for a year and a half. I had pain in the back and head, and almost continuous in the loins and felt weary all the time. A few doses of Doan's Kidney Pills brought great relief, and I kept on taking them until in a short time I was cured. I think Doan's Kidney Pills are wonderful."

KNEW WHAT PAPA SAID.

And It Was Something of a Variation of Old Adage.

Tommy was stubborn and his teacher was having a hard time explaining a small point in the geography lesson.

"Tommy," teacher began, "you can learn this if you make up your mind. It's not one bit smart to appear dull. I know," she continued, coaxingly, "that you are just as bright as any boy in the class. Remember, Tommy, where there's a will there's——"

"Aw," broke in Tommy, "I know all dat, I do. Me fadder's a lawyer, he is, an' I've heard him say it lots o' times."

"You should not have interrupted me," reprimanded the teacher, "but I'm glad that your father has taught you the old adage. Can you repeat it for me?"

"Sure," said Tommy, confidently. "Me fadder says dat where der's a will—der's always a bunch o' poor relations."—Lippincott's.

Pure Food.

The pure food law does not prohibit the sale of Cream of Tartar Baking Powders because Cream of Tartar is as pure as Alum—but it is a well known fact that a baking powder in which Alum is used instead of Cream of Tartar is less injurious. Dr. Herman Reinbold, the expert German chemist, in a recent official report concerning Baking Powders, declares that a pure Alum baking powder is better and less injurious than the so-called Cream of Tartar powders. He says that if the quantity of alum contained in a sufficient quantity of baking powder for a batch of bread or cakes for an ordinary family, be concentrated to one mouthful of food, and taken into the stomach of any one person, no matter how delicate, it could do no harm.

On Wit and Humor.

Man is the only animal that laughs and weeps, for he is the only animal that is struck with the difference between what things are and what they ought to be. We weep at what thwarts or exceeds our desires in serious matters; we laugh at what only disappoints our expectations in trifles. We shed tears from sympathy with real and necessary distress; as we burst into laughter from want of sympathy with that which is unreasonable and unnecessary, the absurdity of which provokes our spleen or mirth, rather than serious reflections on it.—William Hazlitt.

A Point of View.

The new steamer City of ——, was laid up for repairs and one of the rickety old-timers of the line was sailing in her place. A passenger who was somewhat irritated by the fact remarked to another, an Irishman, by the way: "The City of —— always gets in at two in the morning and this old tub never gets in before six."

The Irishman thought for a moment and replied: "It's all right. The distance is just the same and we get a longer sail for the money."

Not Saying Much for Ma.

"Pa, is ma your best half?"

"I suppose so."

"Still, that ain't sayin' much for ma, is it?"

HAD A FELLOW FEELING.

Aunt Susan's Heart Went Out to "Pore Missus Astor."

Uncle Eli felt he knew the metropolis pretty well. Had he not been there three times in four years—and twice he had ridden on the elevated. So when he brought Aunt Susan with him (on the fourth trip) he naturally assumed the role of guide.

She marveled at everything until they sat down for luncheon. They had gone into the Astor house for that meal, but all its other marvels seemed lost on the visiting country hostess, as she looked open-eyed at the crowds that filled not only the corridors but the restaurants. Scarcely had they found seats, when this amazement took definite shape.

"Eli," said she in a stagey whisper, "I can't set here an' eat peaceably. I jes' must go downstairs an' help pore Missus Astor with the cookin' an' dishes."—Bohemian.

First Aid.

A Washington doctor was recently called to his telephone by a colored woman formerly in the service of his wife. In great agitation the darky advised the physician that her youngest child was in a bad way.

"What seems to be the trouble?" asked the doctor.

"Doc, she done swallered a whole bottle of ink!"

"I'll be there in a short while to see her," said the Medico. "In the mean time have you done anything for her?"

"I done give her three pieces o' blottin' paper, Doc," said the negress, doubtfully.—Harper's Weekly.

The lanky tramp removed his tattered hat and displayed his intellectual brow.

"Ah, lady," he confided, "I have brains to burn. There is nothing I like better than to tackle knotty problems."

The busy housewife reached for the ax.

"Indeed!" she said. "Well, go down to the woodpile. You will find that last load the most knotty problem you ever tackled during your career."

Women Avoid Operations

MISS ROSE MOORE

When a woman suffering from female trouble is told that an operation is necessary, it, of course, frightens her.

The very thought of the hospital, the operating table and the knife strikes terror to her heart.

It is quite true that these troubles may reach a stage where an operation is the only resource, but a great many women have been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after an operation has been decided upon as the only cure. The strongest and most grateful statements possible to make come from women who by taking made from native roots and herbs, have escaped serious operations, as evidenced by Miss Rose Moore's case, of 307 W. 26th St., N. Y. She writes:—

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has cured me of the very worst form of female trouble and I wish to express to you my deepest gratitude. I suffered intensely for two years so that I was unable to attend to my duties and was a burden to my family. I doctored and doctored with only temporary relief and constantly objecting to an operation which I was advised to undergo. I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; it cured me of the terrible trouble and I am now in better health than I have been for many years."

This and other such cases should encourage every woman to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before she submits to an operation.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation to Women

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. From the symptoms given, the trouble may be located and the quickest and surest way of recovery advised.

THE DAIRY

WELL-PLANNED COW STALL.

Features Which Will Add to the Comfort of the Animal.

I do not like stanchions of any kind. I think they destroy the naturalness of the cows and they trouble each other a great deal, besides often treading upon each other.

The only point in favor of stanchions is that they take up less room, but I believe the increase in milk is a reward for allowing more space and convenience to each cow.

The cut shows the kind of stall which I prefer, writes a correspondent of the Missouri Valley Farmer. The rack, a, is of hardwood 30 inches high, with the slats wide enough so cow can thrust her nose through up to her eyes.

The bottom of the rack is 18 inches wide, extending into the stall toward the cow. The feed box, b, slides through an opening in the stall on the barn floor. It can be drawn into the feedway, cleaned out and a new feed put in without being disturbed by the cow.

The halter strap, c, is just long enough to allow the cow to lie down comfortably. The gutter, d, is eight inches lower than the stall floor. When she lies down she will put her head under the rack in kneeling and when she gets up she will move backward so that she can look through the rack. The length and width of stall can be made to suit the cows.

AN ESSENTIAL FACTOR.

The Dairy Woman and the Part She Has Had in Developing the Dairy Cow.

It is doubtful if any of the valuable breeds of dairy cows could have been produced without the help of women. That is, these breeds have been brought to their high state of perfection because the people that have had the care of them for centuries have been mostly women. The cows of the Channel Islands and the cows of Holland have been under the supervision of women for so long a time that "the memory of man runneth not to the contrary."

Imagine, says Farmers' Review, some of our western cowboys trying to develop a breed of dairy cows. Any dairy breed they might evolve would have the ability to run a four-minute gait and to scale fences with little trouble. The cow naturally partakes something of the nature of the one that has charge of her. Kindness has made the Dutch cow and the Jersey cow kind. Harshness would have made them into animals that few could milk. Gentleness has made them of a quiet disposition, inclined to chew the cud in contentment, in a feeling of perfect security. This contentment has made the work of the mammary glands easy, and great capacities for the production of milk and cream have been evolved.

The United States is little likely to have a distinctive breed of dairy cows. In the main, our cows here are in the care of men, especially in the larger dairy establishments. On the farms where women milk that is the only part they have in dairying Men have most of the care of the animals.

The dairy woman is best adapted to take care of the dairy cow. If more women take up dairying as an occupation it will be a good thing for the dairy interests. They appreciate the value of the fine points in dairying, and the fine points are what regulate the value of the dairy output.

DAIRY DOTS AND DASHES.

A hand separator well taken care of will last for a generation.

The man that owns a hand separator can feed warm skimmilk to his stock.

The average person's idea of cleanliness corresponds with everyday conditions and conveniences.

A cow so milked that she does not enjoy the operation will soon retire from the business of giving milk.

Generally the failure to make dairying pay is due more to inefficient managment than to poor cows.

In purchasing a cow for butter and milk do not be carried away by the breeding of the animal, but see that she has individual merit.

The application of elbow grease may be disagreeable, but it insures clean milk, clean separators, clean butter, and generally a clean reputation.

A gallon of 30 per cent. cream weighs about eight pounds and five ounces. If it weighs less than that, it will surely test less than 30 per cent.

It is better to milk the cows before feeding them, as they will then keep more quiet. Besides the dust from the hay or the odor from the silage and other things will not get into the milk that is being drawn

COWS FROM GRASS TO HAY.

Prof. A. L. Haecker, Nebraska, Tells How Change Should Be Made.

Cows are generally taken off pasture some time during the late fall when a big storm is in progress and it becomes necessary to house them. This method, while very natural, is not to be recommended, as the chances are the barn will not be in condition to receive the animals, and such little matters as bedding, feed, stalls, etc., will hardly be in shape for this new condition.

The best method, in my experience, to change stock from pasture to winter feed without causing a shrinkage in the milk flow or a loss in body weight of the animal, is to make such change gradually. A week, at least, should be taken to shift the animal from grass to dry feed or from pasture to winter. Very often during the season of the year when cows are changed the pasture is rather short and sometimes tough and dry, though if fall rains have been plentiful the grass may be in fairly good condition, but somewhat frosty. The cows if allowed access to a rack well filled with hay will begin eating the hay, even while the pasture is good. They will in this way become accustomed to the change gradually and will not suffer as a result of the new ration.

One of the best foods to give immediately after removing from pasture is roots. Beets, turnips or mangles may be fed at this season to the very best advantage. Beets are, as a rule, in the best shape at this season of the year, and may be fed in large rations, as silage or hay would be. A beet ration to a cow on full milk can be made from 15 to 30 pounds daily from four to ten pounds of grain, according to the amount of milk the animal is producing, and its capacity.

When forage or hay is given, it should be to the best quality at this time of the year, for the animal must be tempted with rations of the most palatable kind. If there is some spoiled hay in stack or barn do not feed it at this time, for it will come in much better during the cold winter months, when the animal has naturally a good appetite and is well accustomed to dry food. Keep the cows out of doors as much as possible, that is, stable only when necessary. If the general custom is to stable nights, see to it that the windows and doors are left open, for the season is generally mild during the late fall and early winter and animals will suffer more from close confinement than too much ventilation. Remember that a cow requires as much fresh air as ten people. Then if you are stabling 20 cows in a barn, consider what 200 people could stand in the way of confinement. Tuberculosis would be unknown if this were duly considered and made allowance for.

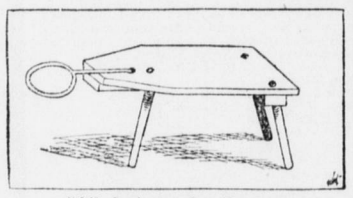
Several years ago we made a little test to ascertain the effect of stabling as compared with allowing the animal access to the open yard with sheds adjoining. The test was carried on during November, when the nights were cold and frosty. We found in this short test that in every instance where the cows were compelled to sleep in the barn in stalls they did not give as large a yield of milk as when allowed the open air. We were quite surprised about this for the nights were quite cold, though dry. The barn was well ventilated and the animals had plenty of good, dry bedding and were in clean stalls. Nevertheless, a stall is not as comfortable for an animal as the ground, providing it is not muddy or disagreeable.

We make it a practice, when changing from grass to dry feed, of allowing the cows as much liberty as possible in yards or paddocks about the barn; also to put them in the barn only when the weather is bad or at milking time, until they are well accustomed to the new condition. While cows are on pasture they naturally take considerable exercise. In grazing they walk many miles. The change from this condition to a narrow stall is naturally rather severe, and due consideration should be made in allowing the cow at this time as much freedom and open air as possible.—Orange Judd Farmer.

ANTI-SPILL MILK STOOL.

A Contrivance Which May Prove of Value to Some Milker.

"B" is made of lumber 1x10 inches and 16 inches long, with a piece of 2x4 for legs to go through nailed on the under side, the back piece going crossways and the front one lengthways.



"A" Swings the Bucket.

Bore holes for legs so they will stand well apart at the bottom. "A" is a bail for holding milk pail and is made from tooth of an old rake. It is bolted on just far enough away from stool so the pail will not strike when swinging either way. When cow goes to step, says the Missouri Valley Farmer, just swing pail out of the way and save the milk and your temper.

Milk Preservation.

The secret of milk preservation may be traced to two things. First, cleanliness; second, low temperature. If it is impossible to provide both, stay out of the milk and butter business.

PROLIFIC GARDEN

ENGLISHMAN'S FIRST AND SUCCESSFUL ATTEMPTS IN MANITOBA—SOIL PRODUCES STRIKING RESULTS.

The Winnipeg (Canada) Free Press of a few days since contains account of the success that followed the efforts of William Knowles, an Englishman who located near Winnipeg, Manitoba. This is but one of many letters giving experiences of settlers, and should be encouraging to those who are looking about for a new home in which they may better their conditions. The following is a copy of the article referred to:

William Knowles, who cultivates some twelve acres of land just below Middlechurch ferry on east side of the Red River has probably as fine a display of horticultural products as any in Manitoba. The whole of his holding is in a high state of cultivation and literally crowded with splendid vegetable specimens, which have fortunately escaped damage by hail, although heavy storms have more than once occurred within a few miles. The potatoes are a wonderful crop, and he expects to raise 1,500 bushels from his patch of 4½ acres. A half dozen of tubers selected yesterday average more than a pound each. Adjoining the potatoes may be seen a marvelous collection of tomatoes. There are 600 plants, all growing under an enormous weight of fruit. One single stock picked yesterday contained eighteen tomatoes and weighed four pounds. This extraordinary example of marvelous growth, together with some of the potatoes were sent to the Free Press office.

The proprietor was the first in town with several specimens, including green corn. The season has been favorable for onions, and one square patch of nearly an acre is looking remarkably healthy. In addition there are good crops of cabbages, cauliflower, turnips, parsnips, carrots, pumpkins, marrows, cucumbers, celery, peas, lettuce, rhubarb, etc. The floral department has not been neglected and a charming display of all the well known blooms were shown, including a specially choice lot of asters.

Mrs. Knowles, who gained most of his gardening experience in England, is loud in his praise of Manitoba soil for vegetable raising, and is gratified with the result of his first attempt at extensive horticulture.

PROVIDENCE WAS IN IT.

Fortunate Meeting Surely Brought About by Hand of Fate.

A farmerish-looking man shared my seat on the train as I was traveling through Indiana, and after we had been talking for a couple of hours a very common-looking woman got on at a station. I saw the man look very hard at her, and directly after she had taken a seat he rose up and said:

"Excuse me, stranger, but I think I used to know that woman, and I'll go over and see her."

He was gone about an hour, and I had forgotten all about him when he returned to say:

"Yes, I knew her. Durn my cats if it didn't turn out to be my first wife!"

"It did?"

"Sure's you live. We was divorced 'leven years ago, and since then I've been married twice and lost both women by death. I surely believe the hand of Providence is in it."

"For just what reason?"

"Why, I've got nine children that need a mother, and Hanner is willing to try it again and see if we can't get along better!"—Exchange.

Tripped.

Gunner—So you think the DeBlowers are faking about their extended European tour?

Guyer—I should say so. They said there were so many Americans in Venice that many had to walk in the middle of the street.

When the Orator Soared.

In the course of an address extolling the virtues of the medical profession, Dr. L. B. McBrayer of Asheville, N. C., used the following characteristic southern language:

"Could I borrow from the sun his cheery smile, from the moon her golden beams of light, from the southern zephyrs their softness, from the rose its fragrance, from the rainbow its celestial beauty, from the babbling brook its laughter and song, from the sea its awe and wonder, from the valley its serenity, and from the mountains their majesty and put these down upon a piece of azure blue sky, with comets for commas and planets for periods, I might then paint for you what the practice of medicine is like."

A Terrible Possibility.

Little Lucy came home from school crying piteously. It was some time before the family could learn the cause of her trouble, but finally the sobbing grew less violent and she wailed out:

"Teacher says—if I don't get my spelling lesson—she's going to make an example of me, and—if she puts me there, I'm—afraid the scholars will rub me ou—t!"—Detroit News Tribune.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

It is an endurance test of patience to keep from blazing away at them every time they run over a cow or scare a horse."

FOR SOLDIERS' HOMESTEAD RIGHTS

All soldiers who served ninety days or more in the federal army or navy between 1861-1865, and who made homestead entries for less than 160 acres on or before June 22, 1874, means that an additional right is due someone and that it can be sold to me for spot cash, no matter whether patent issued or not. If soldier is dead, his heirs are entitled. The right descends as follows: First, to the widow; and second, to the legal heirs, or next of kin. Talk to old soldiers, their widows, children, or next of kin, about this class of additional rights. Get busy right now and find some of your relatives who made homestead entries in early days. It's easy money. For further information address Comrade W. E. Moses, 80 California Building, Denver, Colo.

New and Liberal Homestead Regulations in

WESTERN CANADA

New Districts Now Opened for Settlement

Some of the choicest lands in the grain growing belts of Saskatchewan and Alberta have recently been opened for settlement under the Revised Homestead Regulations of Canada. Thousands of homesteads of 160 acres each are now available. The new regulations make it possible for entry to be made by proxy, the opportunity that many in the United States have been waiting for. Any member of a family may make entry for any other member of the family, who may be entitled to make entry for himself or herself. Entry may now be made before the Agent or Sub-Agent of the District by proxy, (on certain conditions) by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

"Any even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba or the North-West Provinces, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person the sole head of a family, or male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one quarter section, of 160 acres, more or less."

The fee in each case will be $10.00. Churches, schools and markets convenient. Healthy climate, splendid crops and good laws. Grain-growing and cattle raising principal industries.

A Wonderful Dog.

I ran a news stand at Port Jervis, N. Y. I owned a common shepherd dog which was a very intelligent animal and was of great assistance to me in the newspaper business, running across the street with papers in his mouth to customers. He attracted much attention, and he got me many new customers, for everybody liked him, he was such a business dog.

I was sick one day and not able to sell my papers. My dog came in my room where I lay in bed. He fumbled around in my pants pockets and took the keys to my news stand and ran out of the house, and the first thing I knew he had the newspaper stand opened up and doing business.

He was very clever in making change, changing five and ten dollar bills without a single mistake, working the cash register with his paws, and everything ran smoothly until a man came up and passed him a lead quarter. My dog got mad and lost his temper entirely, and I was forced to interfere. With much trouble I managed to pull them apart.

If this dog had not had such a quick temper I would have started him in business for himself. This dog is still living.—Boston Post.

Crushed by Beecher.

Henry Ward Beecher was once approached by a young man who considered himself very clever.

"Do you know, Mr. Beecher," said he, "I've been thinking that I would settle down. Now, I like your preaching, but when I go to your church and see such men as old S. and others, grasping skinflints and hypocrites to the core, sitting there in full membership, why, the thing is just a little too much for me, and really," he added, "I cannot join."

"Well, you're right," said Mr. Beecher. "Every church has such men, and I fancy Plymouth is not free from them, and until you spoke I have always wondered why the good Lord permitted it. Now I understand."

"Ah," gurgled the young fellow, "I am glad I have thrown light on the question! What strikes you as the reason, Mr. Beecher?"

"Well," replied the great preacher, "it is permitted in order to keep just such fools as you out of the churches."

The Nearest Approach.

An English tourist visited Arran and being a keen disciple of Izaak Walton was arranging to have a day's good sport. Being told that the cleg, or horsefly, would suit his purpose admirably for a lure, he addressed himself to Christy, the highland servant girl, "I say, my girl, can you get me some horseflies?"

Christy looked stupid, and he repeated his question. Finding that she did not yet comprehend him, he exclaimed: "Why, girl, did you never see a horsefly?"

"Naa, sir," said the girl, "but a wanse saw a coo jump ower a preshipice."

Grandfather's Portrait.

A villager, intensely conceited and ignorant, but quite wealthy, was persuaded to have his grandfather's picture repainted.

The artist, not having been decently treated by the villager, drew the portrait almost in a nude form. Rolling it up, he told the man not to look at it before the coming New Year. On that day the villager ordered the picture to be hung up that he might pay it his New Year respects. As it was being unrolled he frantically waved his hands and shouted: "Wait! Wait! The old gentleman is not ready, for he is not yet dressed."—From the Chinese.

The Worth of His Money.

Not seldom in highland districts the attendance at church during unpropitious weather is but scanty. One minister, finding himself on a boisterous Sunday confronted with but one solitary auditor, who happened to be a gruff, outspoken character, took him into his confidence, with a view to propitiate him. "Will I go on with the sermon, John?" John answered gruffly, "Of course." Getting into the pulpit and leaning over it, he asked, "Will I give you the Gaelic sermon or the English one?" "Gie's baith. Ye're weel paid for 't," said John, more gruffly still.—Dundee Advertiser.

Bituminous Coal.

Shortly after the adoption of bituminous coal as a fuel in England a royal proclamation was used forbidding its use and authorizing the destruction of the furnaces of the users, who were characterized as evil doers. Scarcity of fuel, it seems, shortly compelled the resumption of its use. In the reign of Elizabeth bituminous coal was again prohibited during sessions of parliament lest the health of the members suffer thereby.—London Telegraph.

The Richest.

That country is the richest which nourishes the greatest number of noble and happy human beings; that man is the richest who, having perfected the functions of his own life to the utmost, has also the widest helpful influence, both personal and by means of his possessions, over the lives of others.—John Ruskin.

A Philosopher.

Frances Willard once wrote to a friend who had just lost a daughter: "Dear Sister Anna, how much richer are you than I! Here I sit alone without a child to die, while you are mother to an angel."

Constipation

Baked sweet apples, with some people, bring prompt relief for Constipation. With others, coarse all-wheat bread will have the same effect. Nature undoubtedly has a vegetable remedy to relieve every ailment known to man, if physicians can but find Nature's way to health. And this is strikingly true with regard to Constipation.

The bark of a certain tree in California—Cascara Sagrada—offers a most excellent aid to this end. But, combined with Egyptian Senna, Slippery Elm Bark, Solid Extract of Prunes, etc., this same Cascara bark is given its greatest possible power to correct constipation. A toothsome Candy Tablet, called Lax-ets, is now made at the Dr. Shoop Laboratories, from this ingenuous and most effective prescription. Its effect on Constipation, Biliousness, Sour Stomach, Bad Breath, Sallow Complexion, etc., is indeed prompt and satisfying.

No griping, no unpleasant after effects are experienced, and Lax-ets are put up in beautiful lithographed metal boxes at 5 cents and 25 cents per box.
